

Example: Cross Functional Process Map

Frequently we are called by clients who have no formal documentation of their processes and are experiencing some faults or process breakdowns. In other cases, the client had no previous need for documentation of processes and procedures but due to a growing staff or personnel changes recognizes the benefit of everyone on the team knowing what needs to be done, when, and by whom.

Create a Planogram for Merchandising Existing Store

